

Big Risks for Big Rewards

Near a small town on the open Saskatchewan prairie, two brothers, their families and their neighbors come together to build an agricultural legacy... for them life is about taking Big Risks for Big Rewards.

Through the eyes of four generations of the Hamoline family, select friends and neighbours, this six-part documentary series explores everyday life on the Prairie farm from their early pioneering days to the emerging high stakes multi million-dollar farm that it has become today.

At the mercy of Mother nature who is always threatening, each day, month, spring, summer, fall and winter is sometimes nothing more than a preverbal role of the dice for farm survival. This series delves into the daily tasks; the extensive skills and the hidden dangers that always lurk on a Saskatchewan grain farm while also investigating the enormous challenges in cattle ranching. Balancing farm life and family life can be challenging, and spouses' reactions can be supporting or undermining.

Extracurricular activities fortify the bonds between team members and the community. Outside of the homestead, following in their parents' footsteps, Adrien, the local Fire Chief, and Real, a Rural Municipality Councillor, play an active role in the local community. With the motto, "work hard play hard", the boys often find themselves in perilous situations, from snowmobiling in the unforgiving mountains of British Columbia to hard hitting Senior Hockey at the community rink.

The link between generations is special and is respected beyond the confines of red barns and open beautiful prairie sunsets. The series truthfully reveals, life on the farm is more than planting and harvesting. Its a big business where a conscientious approach to science, accounting, weather forecasting and creative mechanical wizardry, all merge together, becoming a situation that culminates in... Big Risks for Big Rewards.
